

Bring Equity to the Classroom with the LGBTQIA+ & People with Disabilities Studies Secondary Collection

Providing New Jersey districts and schools with resources that can be used cross-curricularly across ELA, social studies, and science

Built in partnership with over six New Jersey districts, this collection includes structured lessons and instructional resources that are easy for teachers to use and understand, with clear entry points so all teachers and students feel comfortable. The collection provides authentic content aligned to reinforce instruction and learning around topics such as: Gender Identity, Understanding Intersectionality, Marginalization, Understanding and Defining Range of Disabilities, Evolution Movement, Culture and Contributions, Allyship and Taking Informed Action.

Developed in collaboration with:

- High Point
- Robbinsville
- Fairlawn
- Bloomfield
- New Brunswick
- River Edge

PROFESSIONAL LEARNING

Historical Thinking Skills:

Newsela helps students become critical historians and readers by giving them access to non-dominant untold narratives.

Harmonizing your Instruction with the LGBTQIA+ & People with Disabilities Studies Secondary Collection:

Embed our collection into your scope and sequence in ELA, Social Studies, or SEL.

Culturally Responsive Teaching:

Implementing culturally relevant pedagogy requires the texts to unpack and discuss ways to examine identities.

CONTENT THAT IS ENGAGING & RELEVANT

- Engaging content that is culturally relevant, including current events, primary sources, and unheard perspectives
- Embedded activities and classroom strategies to drive literacy skills and align to standards
- Social Studies resources that reinforce historical thinking skills
- CASEL-aligned Social-Emotional Learning strategies alongside the content
